Bulletin 6

The Longest Day

After nine rounds of eight-board matches Team Janet de Botton has won eight of them and so has a good lead of 145.80 VPs over the second-placed Miniter on a total of 132.71. Taking the third position is Baldursson 123.54. There are three matches today and twenty-five teams within twenty points of the third place. We have seen many changes in the order on the last day over the previous years.

The crowds of players enjoying their lunchtime meal of lasagna, salad and desserts.

A bracelet of gold-like material with suit symbols on it has been handed in and still not collected. If the owner would like to form a queue at the Welcome desk they may reclaim it.

At the end of the Open Teams the Closing Dinner will be served at 20:30 in the Ocean Restaurant. If you have not availed yourself of a ticket for this you may still purchase one from the Welcome Desk. Do not forget to bring your badge for without it you will be denied sustenance. After the dinner there is the prize giving and dancing to live music.

Cash prizes for all events can be collected from 19:30 onwards as mentioned on Page 2

Match One Report

David Burn

The first board of the first match of the 27th Madeira Festival was not the gentle start that players who hadn't yet digested their dinners would have wanted.

COLE v PORTUGALES

West	North	East	South
Bianchedi	Goncalves	Cole	Ribeiro
-	1♦	Pass	2♦
2♥	2♠	4♥	5♦
Double	All Pass

Ribeiro for PORTUGALES chose not to mention his clubs, supporting partner's diamonds first with an inverted raise and then with a shot at game. Goncalves ruffed the second round of hearts in dummy, cashed ♠K, and led ♦J to West's queen and his own king. Now he needed to stay off the trump suit, playing black-suit winners instead, to get out for down two (the same result as the ten-card club fit would suffer with best defence). He led a club to the ace and a club to the king, West discarding a spade. Perhaps that encouraged him to believe that West had started with the doubleton ♦AQ, because he next played a trump and went down four.

COLE v PORTUGALES

West	North	East	South
Martins	Rimstedt	Woodruff	Palma
-	1♦	2♦	2♥
4♥	Pass	Pass	4NT
5♥	Pass	Pass	Double
All Pass

Woodruff for PORTUGALES ventured a Michaels cue-bid over Rimstedt's 1♦ opening, and Palma's cue-bid of 2♥ (probably) showed clubs. At his second turn he got his diamond support into the game with 4NT, and at his third turn he doubled 5♥. Plus 300 at his table and plus 800 at the other meant 15 IMPs to COLE.

A-TMPC v WRECKING BALL

West	North	East	South
Lawy	Carsten	Anoyrkatis	Tyge
-	1♦	Pass	2♣
Pass	2NT	Pass	5♣
All Pass

Somewhat belying their team name, neither Anyorkatis nor Lawy for WRECKING BALL took any part in the auction, and Tyge for A-TMPC decided that he had clubs rather than diamonds. This meant that double-dummy defence to 5♣ was not going to happen, and after West tried and failed to cash two hearts South not only tried but succeeded in cashing eleven winners.

A-TMPC v WRECKING BALL

West	North	East	South
Cholewa	Hult	Skyum	Lindfors
-	1♦	Pass	2♣
2♥	Pass	Pass	3♣
Pass	3♠	Pass	4♥
Pass	4NT	Pass	5♣
Pass	7♣	All Pass
All Pass

There isn't much to say about this except that the number of keycards held by South was doubtless a disappointment to North. West respectfully failed to double, but was not deterred from cashing his tricks, and 100 in his room went with 400 in the other for 11 IMPs to A-TMPC.

WRECKING BALL struck back immediately:

West	North	East	South
Cholewa	Hult	Skyum	Lindfors
-	-	2♦	2NT
Pass	3NT	All Pass

2♦ was a Multi, 2NT was natural and sporting, and Simon Hult must have thought the play would take a few seconds when he put down that impressive dummy. Cholewa didn't know what suit his partner had – the odds favoured spades, but if it happened to be hearts they might take less effort to clear, so he led that suit. Lindfors won in hand and lost a club finesse to East, who decided that it couldn't be right to lead spades – would not his partner have done that with anything worthwhile in the suit? So he returned a heart, and Lindfors made his contract. At the other table:

Lawy	Carsten	Anoyrkatis	Tyge
-	-	2♦	Pass
2♠	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	3♦	All Pass

2♦ was again a Multi, but South didn't have an immediate call to express those values so he passed. When 2♠ came round he doubled, but although North showed some values with 3♦ South didn't imagine North had quite as much as he did and game was not reached. 600 and minus 110 came to 10 IMPs for WRECKING BALL.

In the other match Margie Cole opened a weak 2♠ and when South doubled, Alejandro Bianchedi raised creatively to 3♠. Goncalves took a shot at 5♣ over that, but the contract was hopeless and declarer finished down two. At the other table Palma for COLE played in 3NT against which the defence was able to clear the spades before declarer cleared the clubs. That meant down one (the double-dummy solver would have made it, but the double-dummy solver was delayed at Barcelona airport and fortunately for the rest of the field was unable to play). 3 IMPs went to COLE.

PORTUGALES picked up 5 IMPs on a partscore deal, flat in the other match, then double-digit swings resumed. Your hand at game all is and RHO opens a possibly-short 1♦. What action do you take?

♠ A K 9 4 3 ♥ A ♦ K Q 4 ♣ 10 6 4 2

Cole doubled and rebid 1♠ over partner's 1♥ response, raised to 4♠ by Bianchedi. Woodruff overcalled 1♠ and passed partner's raise to 2♠. Skyum overcalled 1♠ and, after a double by South, made a game try of 3♣ after partner's raise to 2♠. Anoyrkatis overcalled 1♠ and made a game try of 4♠ over partner's single raise. How did they do?

Partner had:

♠ Q 10 7 ♥ 9 7 5 4 ♦ J 10 7 6 ♣ K J

Opener had ♣ A Q, but the rest of the layout was not hostile and game made easily enough, giving 10 IMPs to COLE and to WRECKING BALL. For what it's worth, I would have done none of the above – East should overcall and then make a game try which West should accept. But you don't care about that, and nor should you.

Lawy and Anoyrkatis were the only pair to bid an excellent (and cold) slam on board 5, sending 11 more to WRECKING BALL. Cole and Bianchedi missed it, playing in 5♦ on a ten-card fit and scoring 420 while Woodruff and Martins chose a 5-1 heart fit, but that handled nicely for 450 and an IMP to PORTUGALES. Board 6 was flattish at both tables, and on board 7 WRECKING BALL picked up another large swing when a strange defence let through a game. COLE tacked 5 IMPs onto their score on the final deal when both North-Souths went for penalties, but 300 against a game was worthwhile while 500 was not.

An eventful set of deals saw COLE the winners by 18.04 – 1.96, while WRECKING BALL prevailed 18.53 – 1.47.

Match Two Report

David Burn

WRECKING BALL were rewarded for their first-round win with a second stint on BBO, this time against SWOP. The former team took a narrow lead of 2 IMPs after the first couple of boards - an overtrick on each? Plus 100 against minus 50 and a dull push? Not exactly.

By the look of things, East's double may well have been Lionel showing spades and another suit – the invention of Lionel Wright, a New Zealand international and former manager of TGR's rubber bridge club in London. I don't know what South's 2♣ meant – some play that after a non-penalty double of 1NT you stick with your original system, so it might have been Stayman, or it might just have been natural intending further bidding as and when appropriate.

West's jump to 4♠ caused South to believe that further bidding was indeed appropriate, but East-West were not to be denied. Was East bidding to save? Or to make? Or just because it was his turn? If you ask me, North did very well indeed not to double, and SWOP scored 650.

I thought for a moment I had cracked it, and SWOP was just an acronym from the first letters of the players' surnames. But Els doesn't quite fit that pattern. Maybe SEOP means something rude in Dutch. At any rate the Swedes playing for WRECKING BALL took no part in an auction where 2♣ definitely was Stayman, and North was left to play a peaceful game contract. He lost a diamond, a club ruff and a trump, and he brought back 420 to go with his team-mates' 650 for 14 IMPs to SWOP.

West led ♣A, but partner's eight did not strike him as a reason to do anything but continue clubs. That was a pity, because he had 1690 reasons to continue clubs – the 500 penalty he missed plus the 1190 he had to write in the minus column.

East-West for WRECKING BALL might have been a little concerned at having missed a game. They didn't need to be – plus 150 at their table and plus 1190 at the other meant 16 IMPs to WRECKING BALL.

The swing was smaller on the third board, but the potential was there for something more substantial.

If North had doubled at his second turn, best defence could collect an 800 penalty. West's diamond lead against 3NT went to the queen, and a heart was won by dummy's jack. Now declarer led dummy's ♣J, on which East didn't play the queen so that West won with the ace. Remarkably, the contract could now be beaten only by the counter-intuitive move of leading either of the suits declarer had been playing on, instead of the suit he hadn't or the suit West's side had bid and supported. Of course, Post was never going to do this – he continued with ♦K and Anoyrkatis was now in a position to make the contract. A heart to dummy, king and another club, and there would be nothing East could do in the endgame. But the play didn't go quite like that, and down two was the upshot. At the other table West opened 1♦ and North's 1♥ overcall was passed out, declaring taking ten tricks for 170 and 7 IMPs to SWOP that could have been 12 the other way.

WRECKING BALL regained that swing when a modest contract of 1♥ was doubled at one table but not the other. It went down two and the demolition crew got their 7 IMPs back; an overtrick halved SWOP's deficit and the final score was 23-22 to WRECKING BALL.

Match Three Report

David Burn

DE BOTTON, who had won their first two matches comfortably, opposed in the third round HERZ, who had done the same. On the first deal a 1♣ opening was passed out at one table (a 3-3 fit) and responded to at the other leading to 2NT (a combined 21 count). The latter contract was down one (could have been two) and the former down three (could have been one) for three IMPs to DE BOTTON. The second deal had more interest.

Board 18. Dealer East. N/S Vul.

1♠ showed spades and so did 2♣ – three of them and at least 8 points. 2♦ showed diamonds. The rest of the bids meant something, but I am afraid I have no idea what. The final contract could be made by the double-dummy solver on any defence – how would Norway’s Christian Bakke do?

He won the opening lead of ♦10, faultless so far. He ruffed a diamond in the dummy, maintaining his 100% record for accuracy. He now led a club, but the wrong club – he needed to lead the king, but called for the eight instead. Had DDS been defending Bakke’s punishment would have been swift – ♣Q from North would sink the slam – but Eckhard naturally played low. Declarer discarded a heart and South won ♣A. She continued clubs (nothing else is any good), but Bakke threw another heart on ♣K and cross-ruffed his way home. 11 IMPs to DE BOTTON when the slam was (understandably) not bid at the other table.

An overtrick and a part score swing in 1NT went the same way, then HERZ struck a blow by bidding a cold vulnerable game, missed at the other table due to what looks like a bidding misunderstanding. 10 IMPs to HERZ for 600 and -150, but the next swing went the other way.

Board 22. Dealer East. E/W Vul.

♠ — ♥ K954 ♦ KQ105 ♣ Q862	 N W E S 	♠ A753 ♥ Q832 ♦ AJ8 ♣ 73	♠ KQJ4 ♥ A7 ♦ 9643 ♣ AJ9
♠ 10986 ♥ J106 ♦ 72 ♣ K1054

Both Easts declared 3NT, one West having shown four hearts and short spades, the other just four hearts. Declarer for HERZ won the opening club lead with the nine and played on diamonds. North, in with ♦A, shifted to spades, but when he was in again with ♦J he found the necessary play of a heart and declarer had to go down one. DE BOTTON’s declarer received a spade lead, ducked to his hand, and a diamond to the king was also allowed to hold. A club to the jack was followed by an understandable but fatal spade continuation, and that was all the help required. 600 and 100 was worth 12 IMPs to DE BOTTON.

The final large swing was a mildly comical affair – East had doubled a 2♦ response to Stayman, but when North declared 3NT she ignored her own advice and led something else. There still weren’t enough tricks, but when East got in again she still didn’t lead diamonds and declarer by then had enough winners. Since his diamond stop had consisted of ♦QJ facing ♦64, he was no doubt pleased about that. At the other table no one interfered with Stayman and the final contract was 4♥, down one on a rather unlucky lie of the cards, for 10 IMPs to DE BOTTON and another comfortable win that carried them to the top of the table.

Talking of Tips

Mark Horton

Mark Horton, who is normally present at this festival, was watching from afar in Shrewsbury England and sent me this observation.

Reading through the Bulletins I noticed that the odd bridge tip has been mentioned.

If you want to get better at bridge, reading is one of the best routes to go down.

Many years ago, I wrote a book entitled Better Signalling Now. One of the things I advocated was that when holding AK of a suit you should lead the ace to ask for an attitude signal, and the king for a count signal. I also mentioned that leading the king against a notrump contract should ask partner to unblock any honor they might hold.

Logging on to BBO I spotted this deal from the completed match between de Botton and Minter in Round 6:

4NT Quantative

Over Two Hearts I had a choice of bids. I could bid Four Clubs, to show club support, now that partner has shown at least 5 and probably 4 hearts. Or I could show my diamond stopper.

Since it's pairs and following the well known quote of Bob Hamman, I decided to bid 3NT.

Partner bid 4 NT quantative, (Four Clubs also was an option, but I guess she was also playing pairs), showing a good hand and asking if my hand was good enough to be in slam. I have a pretty clean hand, and 6 clubs, 4 hearts and 2 aces were 12 tricks. And if not 12 tricks, then probably enough chances for some smart play.

I could have bid 6NT directly, but decided to bid Five Diamonds, giving East the chance to double (to try and locate the diamond honours), which is also 3-0 key cards, if 4NT was meant as ace asking.

My partner didn't dare bid Seven Clubs, although that must have chances, and I corrected Six Clubs to 6NT.

A diamond lead and I only counted 11 tricks. There are three lines of play. Rectify the count by only taking the second diamond, playing on a heart/spade squeeze, or taking the first trick and play on a strip squeeze/throw in against East or the boring heart finesse.

The squeeze version looks to have less chances (♥Q and ♠KJ10 in the same hand). So I took the diamond ace in the first trick. Keeping also my chances to make 13 tricks.

On the club parade, West at some point threw a heart, convincing me she didn't have the heart queen. So I decided to go for the strip and throw in. Running the rest of the clubs, cashing the ace of spades and hearts, and East was left with one diamond and two hearts. I threw him in with diamonds and he was so kind as to lead hearts into my KJ, as he had no other choice.

He could have been claiming the best played hand if he had kept a spade, and threw away an extra heart instead... ending with one diamond, the queen of hearts and a small spade.

I would have played the same and been rewarded with only 10 tricks, and an angry face from my partner but probably €50 for the worst played hand.

Just One Poncha

Ron Tacchi

On the Friday of the festival there is a tradition whereby a crowd of mainly Portuguese and Madeirans (but including me) go off for a 'serious' lunch. I cannot tell you where it is for two reasons, firstly if I did tell you I would have to shoot you and secondly most people who drive there do not know how to get there and can spend a certain amount of time going round in circles. It is also tradition to have a Poncha at a tavern before going on to the restaurant. In theory there is only time for one glass. Jorge Cruzeiro has come up with a solution to this seemingly intractable problem by significantly increasing the size of the glass.

I returned to my station in the Bulletin Office sometime after six p.m. in a mellow condition and commenced production of the Daily Bulletin. Suddenly at the last moment Ceri and I were required to fill in and complete a team with a nice pair of Canadians, the Andersons. I am not sure they would have been so happy to have us as temporary teammates had they witnessed my lunchtime activities.

I felt it my due to report on our tales of deriding do, however my coworkers have suggested a write up on our first match against a team called Bye might not be a riveting read. So I give you an amusing defence from the second match.

I commenced hostilities with the ♠K, noting partner's jack and continued with the ace, partner completing her peter. The ♠7 was ruffed by partner who returned a heart to the king and ace and my fourth spade saw declarer insert the ♣9 which partner overruffed with the ten. The ace of diamonds was cashed and Ceri returned a diamond and when declarer played the king I ruffed and we still had red tricks to come for five off.

On Board 21 I had to decide what to lead against an opening 1NT on my right and a direct raise to three on my left. I held:

♥ 982
♦ 1064

Without hesitation I selected the ♥2 to find partner with ♥AKQxx. I called it a triumph for the 3rd and 5th leads. Of course somewhere in a parallel universe partner had ♠AK2 but that is a universe far far away.

But we won both our matches.

That Elusive Par

David Burn

Deals on which both sides can make game are not common, especially when one of those games is 3NT. But when such an occasion does arise, it can lead to an unusual par result on the board. The runaway winners of the Open Pairs, beat par by a fraction after an auction that might have had more to do with the victory champagne than the cards themselves.

North was actually pretty well placed after his opening, since he could continue with three bids that denied length in everything except diamonds, which all in all was an accurate enough description. Neither opponent was prescient enough to double, which would have led to the absolute par result – a vulnerable-against-not sacrifice in 4NT (East-West can make 4♠ easily enough). Down one undoubled in 4NT was actually only a little above average for North-South – many pairs had been allowed to buy the hand in 3NT their way after having opened it – but by that time Ola Rimstedt and Antonio Campos Palma could afford the occasional 52% board.

The Question of Nationality

Laura Woodruff

On Wednesday afternoon my partner and I found ourselves at table I2 playing against a charming pair from the other side of the Atlantic. During the chit-chat at the end of the round, we worked out that there were at least eight - depending on definition - nationalities represented by the four players at the table.

Is this a record? I suspect not.

North was a young Colombian with a Spanish passport. South was an Italian-American. East (that's me) was a UK-Portuguese dual national born in Cardiff (which is where the question of definition comes in), and West was a Dutchwoman of French Huguenot extraction.

When I was adding nationalities to the list of pairs on the website a couple of weeks ago the only 2-digit code I had to look up was Colombia (CO). We have quite a few South Americans here despite the very recent WBF tournament in Buenos Aires, and are delighted to see them all. They lend a certain glamour to proceedings, and some of them are bridge stars beyond their native continent.

If anyone can beat eight (or nine) nationalities at a single table, please let the Bulletin team know – you can leave a note at the Welcome Desk.
